The Fort Worth Association of Federated Women's Clubs (FWAFWC) was organized in 1917 with Mrs. Fannie Mae Connally-Winn serving as the first president. It was the desire of Mrs. Winn that the "colored" women of Fort Worth have the opportunity to be known for their contributions and sacrificial service in the communities throughout the city. Growth in membership prompted the association to branch into smaller groups to effectively reach the community at large. To date, there are twelve local women's clubs associated with the FWAFWC. Each club operates under its own set of officers, but all clubs are accountable to the president of the general body. Over its storied history, the FWAFWC has produced leaders who, despite the challenges of gender and society, persevered. In the forefront of the organization's cause has remained the commitment to ensure that women of color are aware of civic duties, social issues in the community, family health matters, cultural art awareness, and the importance, as well as responsibility of educating youth for a better future.
